The McCue Award honors the memory of Dr. Carolyn McCue, one of the few female cardiologists of her time and a pioneer in the field of pediatric cardiology, who practiced at the Medical College of Virginia, now the VCU Medical Center, for 42 years.

The annual award is granted to a woman cardiologist who has made significant contributions to the field of cardiovascular medicine through exceptional clinical care, research or teaching and is recognized by her peers for her dedication, leadership and professionalism.

Award Panel:
George A. Beller, MD, University of Virginia
Anne B. Curtis, MD, University of South Florida
Pamela S. Douglas, MD, Duke University
William C. Little, MD, Wake Forest University
Mary Ann Peberdy, MD, Virginia Commonwealth University
Kiran B. Sagar, MD, University of Wisconsin
Kim Allan Williams, MD, University of Chicago
George W. Vetrovec, MD, Virginia Commonwealth University

Nomination information and forms for the 2010 Dr. Carolyn McCue Woman Cardiologist of the Year Award will be available on June 15, 2010 at heartaward.vcu.edu.

VCU Pauley Heart Center is pleased to announce the winner of the 2009 Dr. Carolyn McCue Woman Cardiologist of the Year Award

Elizabeth G. Nabel, MD
President, Brigham and Women’s Hospital  Professor of Medicine, Harvard Medical School